

The greatest threat to our democracy is the lack of diversity in our public information channels. We need to break up the large media conglomerates rather than allowing further expansion of ownership.